PERSONAL PROFILE:

My name is Liam Henry and I was originally born in the UK. I truly consider myself as a confident person with an open mind, a polite male and I also consider myself as a well-mannered person. With my confidence, I'm conscious that I'm easy to work with, as I can co-operate with other people in teams when required and motivate everybody in the group to solve the problem and to listen to what the others want to say. With the boldness brought to me; I do reach the potential as a Sales Assistant due to myself having a high passion speaking to others as I can co-operate with incoming customers in the store without any problems. I'm willing to work on any shifts available during the weekdays and weekends as I'm intrigued to gain more and more experience to work with people and expand my abilities into a higher role for myself in the future & learn from this opportunity. Although I've mentioned I work well with others, I'm more than aware that I will need to take on full responsibility on working by myself at times but it will ensure that my co-operation will be still the have the consistent graft.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION ABOUT ME:

As I'm quite experienced with martial-arts and self-defence, it doesn't just teach me moves to defend myself and the community around me, but patience and respect. This perfectly fits in with the additional things which will occur if I was working for the company as there will be difficult consumers I will have to work with and I am able to maintain a pleasant atmosphere and provide them with helpful assistance. Due to my personality, featuring high confidence with some humour, I can flexibly describe the items displayed in store and describe its functions and benefits to the customer without an ease.

Although, I have an interest within the technology region, the interest I have with fashion is exquisitely high and is possibly the main goal for it to be a career within the future. It has been a couple of years now and I have taken modelling and fashion very seriously now to a point where I have hired a personal photographer for my personal use as I'd like to take my Instagram pictures on a business level where I would like to be sponsored by a modelling agency. I'm still in progress with my portfolio, but every day of the week I tend to bring out ideas to what theme my next photoshoot will be based upon with my own fashion sense and clothing pieces I would pick in the shoot. From designing art on technology, to expressing art on trainers and also bring out my true self with the type of clothes I represent portrays the dear taste of interests I base myself on within the fashion industry.

HOBBIES AND INTERESTS:

In my free time I've began to self-teach myself with designing trainers with angelus paint with my previous trainers I had purchased & viewed many tutorials all over the internet to gain the best tips to desire my dreams of creation. For example, I had started from shoes I had owned in the past to new white sneakers, re-colouring the shoe-box, the tongue & other certain areas of the trainer expressing my ideas as an artist. It all began where I had started designing mini emblems and logos of myself and ideas from a young mind a couple years ago where I had built up my obsession with clothing and trainers which I had a strong connection with art and design, so I had merged all them together by composing my own creations by portraying that experience and vision on pieces of clothes and also painting and drawing on trainers.

Also, with my spare time I attend martial-art classes a couple times a week and my dedication for this particular sport/defence group has commenced from the beginning of secondary school up to this current day in time.

Even though the attentiveness of the fashion industry from me is exceedingly towering, my vision within computer industry is very high too. (Which is to design websites for huge companies and to even start up my own solo company where others hire me to build their site and add protection and stats to their pages). My interest in computers and technology started off from a very young age of seven, (when I was first given my first laptop as a present). With nobody familiar of technology in my family, they struggled to operate the machines in our household; I self-taught myself on how to use them. Throughout the following years of my childhood, I had taught myself, experimenting things with the stock programs installed in the operating system. Daily, I would use my computer frequently playing around with basic programs such as 'paint' and other image/video editing software's which featured changing text fonts and so on… As I'm always creating design art for my friends and the public, (using Adobe Photoshop & Cinema 4D), it adds passion and knowledge to my mind with the things I truly love for example art and fashion, and not only that too but experience. I strongly postulate that I possess a powerful link with Art and Graphics which relates to retail work placements as my passion with everything I do in my spare time relates with everything the company is searching for. On a computer to myself on a persistent wave, I do create prototypes of my own future clothing lines which could bring out an extraordinary image to the public view…

EMPLOYMENT EXPERIENCES:

I had worked with a sportswear retail company named as 'SportsDirect', (A company what is the United Kingdom's largest sports-goods retailer and operates roughly 670 stores worldwide).

Part-Time Casual Sales Assistant

- 12 Month Experience, (Nearly two years of retail experience) – (Spring 2017)

- Gained excellent experience with customers & how retail jobs work

- Mainly worked on the Footwear/Trainer Department / Had experience on tills also

- Role: Maintain the display walls / maintaining the shoe tables with rows of trainer boxes stacking them up with the correct shoe brand, size, model. Ordering the customer's shoes/trainers by communicating with my colleague's downstairs based in the stockroom using a 'radio', (a walkie-talkie device), using the product code which had its own representation of the item, model and sizing.

- I was always given a portable computer device, (Motorola Mini Windows Device), which was connected to a network, having the barcodes, locations and products information installed on the system. This could scan the barcodes indicating if we had the item in stock or not.

- Whenever there were no sufficient staff members who were running the trainer section with me I had to quickly use my scanner by myself which had all the barcodes installed on the machine of what trainers to collect from the stockroom for the customers, and to serve them solo.

- After the busy hours finishing, a plan named 'close-down' was to be commenced which was to maintain the clothing section by keeping them on the hangers in a straight profession, the correct sizing order and in the right location to keep the area/place in a tidy and respectable look for the customers to walk through and shop.

- Regularly doing the night shifts so it would only be me and the manager, so I would be responsible for any damages if occurred as I was classed as the second keyholder. I would make sure that all the money from every till has been accounted using a cash counter machine and I would also have to commence a second counting, (doing it manually). Finalizing everything at the end of the night in the office. However, I would also be responsible for maintaining the shop-floor after store closure.

EDUCATION:

I'm currently studying IT Level 3 (Software Development), at Solihull College for a year to gain my Diploma in the course, building up to an apprenticeship into the years after gaining the full achievement to become a Website Developer in the IT Industry. With all the information I had written above, it all connects with my career plan for my future and the vision of what I desire.

FLEXIBILITY:

As I'm taking an IT Course at Solihull College my flexibility may vary on specific days and hours. I'm fully available on weekends at any time and I'm also available on weekdays also, mainly on Thursday and Friday would be the most convenient day for me to work as I finish early on Thursday at 2:30 in the afternoon and I do not have any educational day what would be taken on Friday's.
